Washington, March 23 .- Second hand rumors as to the standing of this or that man on the Presidential juestion are plenty here, but definite nformation or positive statements at irst hand are very scarce. Public characters are exceedingly careful not to commit themselves to men or measures at this short range from the Presidential nominations. On the Republican side even candidates are shy and non-committal in speak-

A TALK WITH SENATOR SHEEMAN,

It was a social occasion that rought me the opportunity to speak at length with Senator Sherman upon important topics. Perhaps the character of the visit accounts for the freedom with which he spoke of public aff irs and of the men who mix and mingle in them. Certainly there was none of the reserve in speech or that stiffness of manuer with which he has been so often credited. He was candid, without gush, and dignified, without the olor of coolness. A good deal of his conversation was upon the interesting phases of his long and eventful public life, but a great deal more was upon pending political questions, the attitude of parties thereon and pinions as to the present condition of the party in which he is a level-headed leader. Speaking of its future, he said: "Yes, the heart of the country is fatal mistakes shall yet be made. own judgement and votes when they of reviving past differences or of re- very important to carry Ohio, as it newing the controversies of former the only October State of importance. years.
